State To Remain In Loan Business

Toland Farm Relief Act To Become Revolving Loan Fund

By HENRY N. DORRIS Associated Press Staff Writer

LITTLE ROCK.—(AP)—The state's entry into the farm loan business—at first considered a temporary step to aid Arkansas agriculture through the critical post-drought period—has been made quasi-permanent through a decision of the state agricultural credit board affecting repayment of loans and making of new ones.

The $1,500,000 provided by the Toland farm relief act of 1931, through a decision of the board, will become a sort of revolving loan fund which gradually will be repaid to the state and become a sinking fund to retire the million and a half dollars in bonds to be issued shortly.

The board, as revealed by its secretary, Steve M. Garwood, Little Rock banker, plans to aid individuals through loans for purchase of stock in agricultural credit corporations for the next ten years, or until the serial retirement of the credit board's bonds.

Thus, individuals will repay not less than 10 per cent of their loans, with interest at five per cent, each year. The notes then will be renewed. The 10 per cent repayment each year, Mr. Garwood said, will care for retirement of the bonds and the interest on the notes will care for the interest on the bonds.

In the meantime, the board contemplates the organization of strong agricultural credit corporations which in the future will care for the farm loans of their districts. The state then will have contributed to the setting up of the farmers' own credit system, whereby they will receive loans at a low interest rate comparable in most cases to the interest rate paid by organized industry.

To date, the board has loaned $785,655 to individuals in 54 credit corporations, or an average of 12,700 to the corporation.

Estimates by Mr. Garwood show these individuals have in turn borrowed through the credit corporations something like $3,000,000 from the Federal Intermediate Credit Bank of St. Louis. The average interest paid is five per cent.

All notes mature January 1, 1932, and here is where the farmer-borrower is affected by the board's ruling. Instead of repaying all of the loan, he will renew his note for 90 per cent of its face value and retain this as a capital upon which to finance future operations. By the end of the 10-year period, the board contemplates the permanent rehabilitation of the farmer-borrower.

Mr. Garwood's figures show most of the board's funds have been loaned in the northwestern, western and eastern sections of the state. Most of the $785,000 loaned has gone into the eastern belt of counties, in the Arkansas, White, St. Francis and Mississippi river basins.

Twenty-one counties have not availed themselves of state loans, but this primarily is due to failure to perfect formation of agricultural credit corporations. Organization of these in future years will enable farmers in those localities to participate, although they may at present inter into credit corporations on other counties.

Expense of the state agricultural credit board to date, which includes the cost of much printing and the salary of the only paid employee, is $7,751.46. The board's balance in the state treasury is $716,630.34, which includes a refund of $5,036.80 by one credit corporation which over-borrowed for its requirements.

Mr. Garwood said the board's decision to renew yearly the loans to farmers and place a 10 per cent collection in a sinking fund, will prevent the necessity of imposing a half-mill tax levy authorized by the Toland act to secure the $1,500,000 in bonds.

In order to start immediate functioning of the board, the Toland act authorized the transfer of $1,500,000 from the state highway fund to the board's credit. Issuance of the $1,500,000 in bonds next June 24 will afford money to repay the highway fund.

Except for maintenance of the office, the board will repay the $1,500,000 bond issue without expense to the state.

Winner of U.S. Air Derby Visits Hope With Miss Henry

Mrs. Louise McPhetridge von Thaden Here Wednesday

DELAYED BY WINDS

Large Crowd at Airport On Arrival at 1:30 O'Clock

Mrs. Louise McPhetridge von Thaden, Arkansas aviatrix who captured the American Women's Air Derby in 1929, flew from Little Rock to Hope Wednesday, with Miss Beryl Henry, city superintendent of schools, as her passenger.

The woman air champion, born and reared at Bentonville, Ark., was a close friend of Miss Henry, also a native of Bentonville. Mrs. von Thaden, who resides in Pittsburgh, Pa., met Miss Henry in Little Rock Wednesday morning, while on her way to pay a visit to Bentonville.

Arriving a Command-air plane at Little Rock, Mrs. von Thaden flew Miss Henry home. They left Little Rock at 11:40 a. m., and reached Hope at 1:30. Their time of 1 hour 50 minutes on the 100-mile air trip from the state capital was relatively slow, owing to headwinds which had been noticeable even at the local landing field.

A large crowd was on hand when the plane came in at 1:30. It was scheduled to arrive at 1 o'clock, and a large monoplane passing over about that time gave a false alarm. The big ship continued to Texarkana, however, and 30 minutes later the expected air voyagers arrived.

Upon landing, Mrs. von Thaden took Mayor John Vesey for a flight over the city.

Mrs. von Thaden left on her return flight to Little Rock at 2:30 p. m., carrying Talbot Field, Jr., as passenger.

Arkadelphia High Plans Completed

Building Expected to Begin in July and Be Finished January 1

ARKADELPHIA.—Reinforced concrete and brick will be used in construction of the new Arkadelphia High School building, which will be fire-proof and contain many modern conveniences. Architects Petter and McAninch, of Little Rock have prepared plans which call for a building 206 feet long to front on Haddock street, the north side of the block, the south side of which is occupied by the combined high school and grade school building. The new structure will sit back from the street approximately 100 feet, the front to be three stories and the back, cutting into the hillside, will be two stories. The architects have confirmed the plans to the city of the land and expect to get a handsome effect. The new building will be near enough to the old one and the domestic science unit that can be connected with covered walks. A central heating plant also can be used for all buildings.

About a year ago the school district sold bonds for $125,000 to take care of indebtedness and to put up the new high school building. Members of the board said they hoped to have the contract let so that construction can begin by July 15 and the building completed by the end of the year.

A Noble Adventure

PROFESSOR PICCARD and Dr. Kipper returned to the earth in their queer, air-tight balloon basket announcing that they made highly important scientific discoveries and experiments while drifting about ten miles above the earth's surface. For most people, however, the interesting thing about the flight will be its purely spectacular features—the enormous height to which the balloon ascended, and the strange peril into which the two scientists put themselves.

These things, surely, were spectacular enough for anybody. The two men went more than two miles higher than anyone had ever gone before. They sailed up beyond the ordinary atmosphere into a queer region where the air has only one-tenth of its ordinary density, and where the thermometer sticks at 148 degrees below zero. They looked down and saw the earth vanish in a copper-colored cloud. No living mortals ever came so close to wandering off into the empty space between the stars.

In view of this, the ordinary man can be pardoned for ignoring the scientific aspects of the affair. The important thing is that they made the trip. By making it, they helped to swell the pride of all of us.

For there is always something oddly encouraging about the spectacle of men composedly risking their lives; and the reasons that impel them to do so are not nearly as important as the gray beards would have us think. We get a new confidence in the human race when we see a man calmly take his chances with death, whether he be a scientist trying to broaden the scope of human knowledge, an aviator seeking publicity, and crash by flying the ocean or a circus "daredevil" earning his daily bread on the flying trapeze.

We are debtors to all of these men. They prove to us, over and over again, that the race can, if it wants to, set itself free from its oldest and most powerful compulsions.

All learned men agree that self-preservation is the first law of human existence. We have scriptural authority for the belief that "all that a man hath, will he give for his life." But as we digest this somewhat ignoble axiom, along comes someone to upset it—a scientist in a balloon, or a young man in a 230-mile-an-hour racing car, or an Arctic explorer, or any of those cheerful souls who make danger their calling.

They suggest the existence of a different set of values. They hint that death is less of a matter than we have supposed, since it can be risked so lightly. They prove that men can be glad to loosen their grip on life; and they reveal to us, thereby, that the race is a little bit finer than we sometimes believe.

The Horse Comes Back

THE day of the horses as motive power on the farm is far from being over. Some recent figures, compiled by the Minnesota agricultural authorities, show that for a great many kinds of farm work, which used to be done by horses but lately have been done by motors, the horse is again the cheapest motive power. Oats and hay are selling for the lowest prices in years. Even though gasoline is down, there are a great many farmers who are finding it now more economical to use horses.

On the other hand, race horses and riding horses are more expensive than ever before. The United States Army is finding it difficult to get enough high-grade horses, part thoroughbred for cavalry remounts. Numerous sales of saddle horses, or so-called steeplechase or hunter-type, have been made in the East at prices ranging above $3,000 apiece. Horses of a similar type and quality were easily purchasable for $500 or $600 until a few years ago.

There is still money in the horse. There is money for the breeder of thoroughbreds and saddle stock, and there is profit for the farmer who can utilize horses instead of motors. Probably there never will be a time when the small farmer will not use horses, especially in rough or hilly country. A farm without horses may look all right to the youngsters, but older people feel that it is not a real farm. There is nothing about a tractor to get sentimental about. A horse has individuality and character and often becomes one of the family.—Arkadelphia Siftings-Herald.

A movement is under way in Canada to teach farming free to boys. It is understood to be a growing movement.

Daily WASHINGTON LETTER

BY RUDNEY DUTCHER
 NEA Service Writer

WASHINGTON.—The old high protective tariff theory seems to be in more desperate straits than ever before and its enemies think they can knock it in the head before this depression is over.

Anyway, this is the best chance the free traders and advocates of moderate duties have had and now that American foreign trade has dropped off about 50 per cent, they are intensifying the attempt to convince the country that the Hawley-Smoot tariff is responsible for a lot of its troubles.

Meanwhile, Congress is starting a new campaign of tariff reduction. It is proposing a series of customs union, tariffing previous proposals for a European customs union. Any such developments, arraying the continent against the continent, would be bound to have a large although unpredictable effect on the future of our tariff and those of other nations. One of the greatest factors in American industrial progress has been our vast domestic trading area free of tariff walls; smaller countries on other continents envy us that.

Democrats Cite Trade Drop
 No one can now settle the argument as to the relative importance of the Hawley-Smoot act in America's economic troubles but everybody knows that tariffs are barriers to trade. The Democratic publicity bureau has persistently hammered in the charge that a Republican high tariff was very largely responsible for the big foreign trade drop. Republican politicians deny it and say the new tariff has been helpful, if anything. Political exigencies demand that both groups of politicians say what they are saying.

Nevertheless, it has to be pointed out in fairness that opponents of the Hawley-Smoot act predicted in advance that it would wreck foreign trade and that its use to restore prosperity. A thousand economists joined in a warning against it and Congress merely sneered at "professors." Senator for Jim Watson, Republican floor leader, predicted as the tariff bill passed that the country would be on the upgrade within 30 days and that we would soon regain the peak of prosperity. As prognosticators, the enemies of high tariffs, have since had all the breaks.

Senator Cordell Hull of Tennessee, a fiscal genius who can be depended on to speak as an economist rather than as a Democrat, was predicting six years ago that our high tariffs would "reduce production, diminish trade, impoverish nations and promote economic wars."

Introduced Income Tax
 Hull has talked like that all along. When he came to Congress 25 years ago, Joe Cannon put him on a couple of unimportant committees; but Hull turned deliberately to intensive study of revenue, finance and economics. He introduced the bill for the income and estate taxes, when everyone was convinced that income tax was dead because the supreme court had once called it unconstitutional. The taxation system devised by Hull, put through in the first Wilson administration, largely financed the war.

Allowing for the real value of the dollar, Hull says, our foreign trade is now back at the 1913 level. He has held consistently that all that made it look big after the war, when handicapped by the Fordney-McCumber tariff, was the great automobile export trade and the fact that we were lending 15 billion dollars abroad which we were paid for with our own goods.

"One-sixth of our automobiles and parts, worth $580,000,000, were being exported," Hull says. "The industry was one of the big railroad shippers. It took 18 per cent of the iron and steel, 60 per cent of the plate glass, 90 per cent of our manufactured rubber, most of the oil and gasoline and laid the foundation for our great highway systems by enabling states to lay gasoline taxes. It employed about four and a half million people, directly and indirectly, and spent about six billion dollars a year."

Menus for the Family

BY SISTER MARY

NEA Service Writer

THE first of June usually ushers in the annual picnic season, so perhaps a few suggestions regarding the amount of food ordinarily required for 16 food table picnics will not come amiss.

While the "bacon hot" and the "winger roast" and steak broiled over the camp fire resemble picnics in their informality and setting, the old-fashioned "basket picnic," prepared at home, has a certain charm that is always popular and conducive to high spirits and good appetites.

We usually think of outdoor appetites as being above normal, and for the informal picnic service "a buffet" larger quantities may be made. Often the housewife can make her calculations on the basis of the needs of her own family, and reach a fair conclusion.

The following calculations have been estimated for the average occasion but will be found helpful in gauging the quantities necessary for individual needs.

To begin with, coffee. One-half pound of coffee and four quarts of boiling water will serve fifteen people.

One and one-half dozen lemons will make lemonade to serve 20 to 25 persons, depending largely on the size and juiciness of the fruit.

One quart of salad will serve 10 persons.

One loaf of bread will make 24 sandwiches.

Two-thirds cup creamed butter will spread 24 sandwiches.

One pint sandwich filling will fill 24 sandwiches.

One 4-pound chicken will yield about three cups diced meat.

Tomorrow's Menu

BREAKFAST: Toasted cantaloupes, cereal, cream, crisp boiled bacon, bran toast, margarine, milk, coffee.

LUNCHEON: Sliced cold boiled tongue with whipped cream and grated horseradish, rolled jelly sandwiches, strawberry shortcake, milk, tea.

DINNER: Hot veal loaf with mushroom sauce, buttered cauliflower, tomato and cucumber salad, pea, custard pudding, milk, coffee.

part of the refreshments, larger servings are needed.

One pound salted nuts will serve 20 persons.

The infinite variety often found on a picnic table makes it necessary for the servings to be very small indeed if every article is to be "eaten."

The foregoing suggestions were made with a balanced meal in mind. When baked beans, potato salad, cold boiled ham, deviled eggs, meat loaf, meat sandwiches, cheese sandwiches, pie, cake and cookies are all in evidence with lemonade, coffee, ice cream and watermelon for the "grand finale," the quantities needed of each viand would be much less than normal.

Miss Thelma Robertson of Texarkana, who has been spending her vacation with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. P. Robertson at Ozark, spent Sunday here with friends.

Mr. and Mrs. J. O. Johnson were visitors to Fulton Sunday, guests of Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Johnson.

Miss Charline Cannon of Texarkana, is spending her vacation with Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Cannon at McNab.

Mr. Car Owner

Here is what Race Drivers with Life and Victory at Stake have decided about Tires

FOR twenty-one years the Indianapolis two and a half mile circular brick track, surrounded by a concrete wall to keep the cars from dashing off, has been the crucible where at white heat automobiles and tires have been tested. Thousands of men have risked, and some have sacrificed, their lives, and manufacturers have spent millions of dollars to the end of making better automobiles and better tires.

Louis Schneider and mechanic on Saturday won this race in a heavy 8 cylinder car. He made an average speed of 96.629 miles per hour—on the straightaways and in passing cars he touched 140 miles and better. He drove on 6.00-20 Firestone High Speed Tires with racing treads. He had no tire trouble.

He used Firestone Tires because Firestone experts and engineers have through twenty-one years taken this race as a challenge to tire making. From this race they have developed these vital improvements which have given to Firestone Tires the world leadership in safety, mileage and endurance.

1. Gum-Dipping. Tires had to be stronger and able to stand the heat of a hot red-brick track at high speed. Firestone met this by developing and perfecting the dipping of cords through a rubber solution to insulate each fiber of every cord to overcome heat and give the cord greater strength —and 58% greater flexibility. This is the Patented Gum-Dipping Process used in the making of every Firestone Tire.

2. The Balloon Tire was developed by Firestone to permit greater speed with comfort and safety by increasing road grip and absorbing shocks. It was made possible by the added strength and flexibility given by Gum-Dipping. In the 1925 race, some of the drivers tried the then new Firestone Balloons. The others stuck to high-pressure tires. Peter de Paolo on Firestone Balloons made a world's record. All the prize winners came in on Firestone Balloons—Now the balloon tire is everywhere the standard.

3. Double Cord Breaker. The higher-powered cars and the step-up in speed demanded still more tire toughness. At one hundred miles an hour, the circumference of a tire increases by more than 10%, and this, added to the centrifugal force, tends to throw off the tire treads.
Firestone met this by developing the Patented Double Cord Breaker which gives a 56% stronger bond between the tread and the tire body and also gives a 26% greater protection against punctures and blowouts.

These are some of the great lessons that Firestone has learned on this racing track. And so the men whose lives and fortunes depend on knowing tires always buy Firestone Patented Gum-Dipped Double Cord Breaker High-Speed Tires.

There were 72 entries. Of these, 40 survived the elimination trials—and every one of them was on Firestone Tires. And every tire was bought and paid for.

We give you the benefit of all the lessons Firestone has learned from these races. You can get from us all the strength and safety in tires that the racing drivers buy.

THE GIRL

BY WILLIAMS

"Is there something wrong?" he inquired anxiously.

"I'll tell you," Irene said, loud enough for an eavesdropper to hear. In her voice was a hint of tears and trouble, that ought, she thought, to satisfy Beryl that she was on her way to sacrifice herself. Prentiss helped her tenderly into his car, his hopes at the moment less buoyant than ever they'd been before.

They had not driven far before he told her he'd have to know what was on her mind. Irene had been entirely wordless during the drive.

"It's mother," she said, as though with great reluctance. "She thinks we ought to have a fussy wedding. I'm all tired out arguing with her that the sensible thing is for us to be married quietly and go back to Oakdale right away, as your father wants you to."

"Then she doesn't object to your marrying me?" Prentiss asked eagerly.

"Well—she said she'd like us to have a longer engagement."

"I don't believe in long engagements," Prentiss stated firmly.

"I couldn't have any kind of wedding at all here at home," Irene said, wistfully, "without inviting hordes of people. We know everyone in town."

BUT it was not these things that brought on the fever of anticipation which had seized her. As they neared the corner where the famous jeweler's establishment which bears no identifying sign on the building is located, she put a hand on Prentiss' arm, she looked up at him like a child who sees a big platter of cakes.

"Don't you think we ought to get the wedding ring now?" she breathed softly.

"I'm glad you thought of it," Prentiss told her, and turned into a side street at the next corner.

Buying the wedding ring naturally led to buying an engagement ring. Irene was disappointed over the size of the solitaire. She wished she hadn't been so hasty, telling herself she might have known that Prentiss' funds would be low at the end of a vacation. If she had waited until they reached Oakdale she'd have been able to order what she wanted. Prentiss surely would let her have accounts wherever she liked.

She was radiant enough during the marriage to satisfy Prentiss that she loved him. He kissed her with everyone watching, not the wedding kiss, but another. Irene was thinking that she must get an armful of orchids—yes an armful—to take home. They would help to impress Beryl.

THE two witnesses to whom Prentiss had telephoned from the jeweler's accompanied them; up town for lunch. They were young men who were employed at the hotel where Prentiss had been staying.

At the end of the meal the maitre d'hotel brought in a tiny gem of a wedding cake, decorated with real old-fashioned roses, the pink petals delicately arranged in the flowers.

Prentiss had ordered the cake for just the two of them, but Irene was again disappointed. Why couldn't he have had something that they could take home for her mother to show to all her friends? She looked at the cake, and barely suppressed a sniff. That thing! Everyone would laugh at it. Why, even Clara Dannigell, whose father was only a night watchman on a North Shore estate, had a cake a foot high, with a bell on it and artificial orange blossoms that could hardly be told from real.

Irene lowered her face and looked at her rings. The engagement ring affronted her anew and she felt her temper slipping, but it would never do to show how she felt. She had sense enough to realize this and both Prentiss and the maitre d'hotel were waiting for some expression of approval from her.

She swallowed hard and looked up at them. "It's lovely," she said with enough feeling to satisfy them. Perhaps they were both so sure that she would like the beautiful little cake that they did not weigh her praise at all.

The maitre d'hotel tasted the cake with them and then went back to tell his confreres that "the young Monsieur Gaylord had married the most charming young lady in these parts." (It was Gallic and gallant exaggeration, but it reflected the sincerest opinion of the bridegroom, if not quite of the maitre d'hotel.)

And when the bride said she would like to go home and break the news to her family he had no other thought than to comply with her wish. It seemed to Prentiss a thoughtful and considerate suggestion. For his part, of course, he'd rather take her away instantly and keep her to himself, but she'd been wonderful to put his interests above all else and marry him without having one of her friends, or a member of her family, present at the ceremony. He owed her much for that.

As they left the table she said: "I'd like to telephone Mama before we start."

Prentiss offered to do this for her, but Irene insisted she must do the talking herself. As she hoped, Beryl answered.

Cardinals Defeat Giants; Boost Lead

St. Louis on Top of National By 2½ Games Tuesday

The Cardinals increased their lead over the Giants to two and a half games Tuesday by defeating the New York team at St. Louis, 4 to 3. Burleigh Grimes singled in the eighth inning, scoring Chick Hefey and breaking up a tight hurling duel between himself and Fitzsimmons, the Giants ace.

Brooklyn, tackling the Cubs at Chicago, came through with a 7-6 victory. Philadelphia defeated Cincinnati, 6-2, and Pittsburgh beat Boston, 4 to 3. Eddie Brandt, the Braves leading pitcher, had won eight in a row before Pittsburgh dusted him off Tuesday.

In the American League, the Philadelphia Athletics trimmed the Chicago

Three Cities Bid For State Medical School

LITTLE ROCK.—(P)—At least three cities are bidding for the medical school of the University of Arkansas if the school fails to obtain a contract with Little Rock for operation of general hospital.

Hot Springs, Fayetteville and Benton have made tentative offers, it was said, and the competition will become open if the contract is not signed.

Mayor Knowlton has been urged in two resolutions to see that the contract is signed.

Girl Golfer of Carolina Seen as Coming Champ

MYRTLE BEACH, S. C.—(P)—They're still talking about Edith Lawson's golf.

Miss Lawson, of Chapel Hill, N. C., runner-up in the Carolinas Women's Golf association tournament here, is expected to go far in so-called golf circles in the next few years, observers declare.

A steady swing that sends the ball far down the fairway and her physique are the features that golf experts say will bring her toward the top. She has been playing tournament golf only one year.

17 Are Hurt as Truck Crashes From Bridge

HEBER SPRINGS.—(P)—Seventeen members of a Sunday school picnic party were recovering Monday from injuries received Sunday when the truck in which they were riding overturned near a bridge five miles from here.

Bright Gloomy Over Poughkeepsie Chances

BERKELEY, Cal.—(P)—To win the national regatta at Poughkeepsie, this year a crew will have to beat the best of 12 in ten years, in the opinion of K. C. Knight, coach of the California Golden Bears. Normally, California can hardly expect to place and that "it is just foolishness" to think that California beaten by Washington, will be the runner up.

Rotates Clover, Wheat Without Missing Crop

CANTON, Kan.—(P)—Growing sweet clover in rotation with wheat without losing a crop is the achievement of John Clark, farmer of this community, who sowed the legume in his wheat field in April, 1930.

This spring he had a stand of clover that promised a seed crop approximately equal in value to a wheat crop. After harvest the land will be plowed and seeded to wheat again next fall.

The plan is particularly well adapted to poorer wheat soils, rather than rich soils where the grain grows rank.

Shrimp Meal For Hens

BATON ROUGE, La.—(P)—Feeding experiments using shrimp meal as a supplement in poultry feed, conducted by the Louisiana State University experiment station, have shown that the meal lowers cost of ration, increases egg production, increases feed consumption and decreases mortality.

WAS HARDLY ABLE TO DRAG

Florida Lady Says She Soon Began To Get Better After Taking Cardui.

"I had been struggling with bad health for over a year," says Mrs. Delle Carr, of Graceville, Fla. "I was weak and run-down, and hardly able to drag myself around home. Sometimes a pain in my right side would cause me a lot of suffering. I frequently got so weak I could not keep up at all."

"I read about other women who had recovered their health after taking the Cardui Home Treatment, and I decided to try it, myself. I sent to the store for Cardui and began taking it."

"I soon began to feel better. I was stronger. It was a great help to me, and I was much better after I had taken it. The pain in my side left, and I was able to carry on my work with much less effort. The dragging, tired feeling left me."

"I have recommended Cardui to a number of my friends because I improved so much after I had taken it."

"Tell your friends to try Cardui, when weak and run-down. It is obtainable at your druggists."

General Takes First Plane Ride

General Hanson T. Ely had never been up in a plane before, but—when Lindbergh suggested he take a ride the general accepted. The picture was taken at Mitchell Field before the army plane armada took off. The general, commander of the second corps area, is shown in the cockpit, with Lindy entering. The famous colonel then flew a ship in the Missouri National Guard unit in the maneuvers.

HOW ONE WOMAN LOST 102 POUNDS OF FAT

Almost Unbelievable—Nevertheless True

Dear Friends:

You advertise Kruschen Salts for reducing, so I finally tried them and when I started I weighed 219 pounds and when I took them for a year and 3 weeks, I lost exactly 102 pounds.

I am 23 years old and I look at least 5 years younger now than I did when I was fat. I have a picture of myself before and after so if you want to see them let me know.

I am always telling my friends about the wonderful salts. I am always advertising them.

I took 2 bottles every month for a year and 3 weeks. It amounted to $25 for reducing 102 pounds but it was worth it.

"If I can be of any help to you let me know."

Yours truly, Miss Nellie Simpson, 1903 Wayne Street, Swissvale, Pa., Oct. 31, 1930.

The Modern Safe Way—Right Way to Lose Fat

Just take a half teaspoonful of Kruschen Salts in a glass of hot water every morning before breakfast.

You can hasten the reducing action of Kruschen by going lighter on potatoes, pastry and fatty meats.

Unlike other Salts, Kruschen doesn't reduce by rushing food through your system. Rather it's an ideal blend of 6 separate mineral salts which help every gland, nerve and body organ to function properly.

Women everywhere are overjoyed with this marvelous reducing treatment. Frequently pound by pound of surplus fat leaves and soon you possess that trim, slender figure you've always craved.

An 85c bottle of Kruschen lasts 4 weeks! Is sold by leading druggists the world over—so start this SAFE method to lose ugly fat TODAY! Adv.
